

Many Pay Tribute at Funeral of Highly Respected Pioneer Lady

Mrs. W. T. Barber, the former Sarah Emily Hodgins, was born at Shawville, Que., on July 18, 1877 and on February 10, 1900 she was united in marriage to William T. Barber also of Shawville. In the spring of that year they came to Irma and here she resided 2 miles north-east of the village and continued to reside in this district ever since.

Mrs. Barber had been well known from pioneer days for her hospitality and was a friend to all. She had a great love of flowers and her home was always bright with blooming plants, but her chief delight was in her family and she will always be remembered as a gentle loving mother. She leaves to mourn her loving husband, three sons, Dennis of Innisfree and Clarence and Harold of Irma. Another son, Gordon, passed away in infancy in 1911. Two daughters, Eleanor Mrs. Norman Wilkerson of Fabyan, and Louisa (Mrs. Ervin Prosser) of Irma. Also 9 grandchildren.

She passed away suddenly at her home here on Tuesday, Feb. 26. Funeral services were held from the Irma United church on Thursday, February 28 with the Rev. H. W. Ingie in charge. The hymns sung were "Abide With Me," and "Nearer My God To Thee."

Palbearers were Donald McKay, R. Dempsey, Alex Smallwood, F. H. Gunn, F. T. Hill and Roy Burton. Interment was in the Irma cemetery.

"There's an open gate at the end of the road
Through which each must go alone,
And there in a light we cannot see
Our Father claims his own.

Beyond the gate our loved one finds happiness and rest,
And there is comfort in the thought,
A loving God knows best."

Glen-Coe Gleanings

Once again sorrow has visited our district. We were shocked and saddened to hear of the fatal accident of Mr. Marvin Reitan at his farm home on March 1.

Our deepest sympathy is extended to Mrs. Reitan in her great loss, also to Marvin's sisters, brothers, relatives and many friends.

Marvin, as he was known to everyone, will be missed so much. He was never too busy to aid a neighbor, or to take on extra duties in his church. Although in nature he was cheerful and unassuming, yet the witness of his Christian faith made an impact on everyone with whom he came in contact.

Relatives and friends came from Edmonton, Wetaskiwin and Camrose, as well as from nearby towns, to attend his funeral. Also Marvin's brother, the Rev. Irvin Reitan of Enfield, Sask., was able to be here for the funeral.

Measles has laid low some of our youngsters this past week. The uncomfortable victims were Iona Knudson and John Larson.

Rev. Blackett to Speak At Alliance Church

Four special services will be held in the Irma Alliance church from March 15-17 when Rev. George M. Blackett, Western District Supt. of the Christian and Missionary Alliance will be the guest speaker. These meetings will be held at 8 p.m. on each of Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings and at 11:30 Sunday morning.

Rev. Blackett is a gifted and noted Bible teacher. His warmth and sincerity has gained for him the respect and love of a multitude of former students, congregations and friends. After a very successful and blessed pastoral career, he became principal of the Winnipeg Bible College, where he remained for a number of years, prior to his moving to Regina, Saskatchewan, where he became principal of the Canadian Alliance College. Under his ministry he saw many of his students take their places in universities and Christian work in almost every part of the continent, and as missionaries in almost every country of the world. A few years ago, he was promoted to the office of District Supt. and it is now the privilege of some of his graduates to greet him from time to time in their specific places of service. Rev. and Mrs. Blackett are one of those young people and it is their special pleasure at this time to welcome the public to these meetings to hear this man of God who is an outstanding teacher and spiritual adviser, stands so highly in the esteem of those who know him.

Save Those Pigs

At this time of year a lot of pigs are born weak and unthrifty. The best time to correct this is by feeding the sow properly during the period of pregnancy. However a lot of these weak pigs can be saved by proper management. Make sure that the sows bedding is dry and that she does not have too much bedding when she is due to farrow. Have heat in the litter for the little pigs so that they do not get chilled, heat lamps or a heater of some sort. Keep a close check on the sow

Fewer Sask. motor licences revoked 1956

There were 400 fewer motorizing revocations, suspensions and demotions in 1956 than in 1955. J. A. Christie, chairman of the provincial highway traffic board, said.
Revocations, suspensions and demotions in 1956 totaled 1,794 as compared with 2,194 in 1955. Breakdown of the 1956 figure with the comparable 1955 figure in brackets is as follows:
Driving after drinking 952 (768), reckless or dangerous 59 (64), imprudent 215 (278), judgments 170 (220), Section 146-1 (failing to remain) 78 (122), Section 147-1 (failing to report) 49 (105), driving under suspension 30 (21), sections 90-91 V.A. 144 (136), others 97 (180).

A sharp drop in the number of red and blue licenses was also noted by the highway traffic board. In 1956 a total of 1,660 red licenses were issued compared with 2,097 in 1955 while the number of blue licenses issued dropped from 4,795 in 1955 to 1,134 in 1956.

Mr. Christie said the drop in the number of blue licenses was due to the amendment of the Vehicles Act in 1956 whereby a blue license was not issued for the first conviction with regard to several sections of the Act.

"This has also begun to affect the number of red licenses being issued. It will continue to affect the number of persons whose licenses are revoked, because instead of three minor offenses within two years they are now allowed four before revocation is effective," he said.

Child enjoys some variety in playthings

Variety in toys makes them more fun. A child enjoys playing with one toy for a while, then changing to another. The thing that is not so obvious is that child likes to change his whole form of play, not just pick up another toy.

The youngster enjoys variety in playthings so that he can exercise his skill in various areas. He wants large wheel toys suitable for his age from the wooden trains to the two-wheel bike. These help the development of his large muscles. Then the smaller manipulative toys are a definite change, and this change is needed to develop the smaller muscles. Puzzles, blocks and beads are some of these toys that are fun for children.

A youngster also wants outlets for his dramatic play. If he is a cowboy, he wants to dress the part—complete with two guns. The fascination many little girls have for mother's old clothes for "dress up" satisfies this urge for acting. Creative toys

There is a need, too, for creative toys. Crayons or finger paints make a good beginning. As the child grows, his interest in other supplies increases. Also he will like the chemistry sets, printing materials and building equipment which gives him the opportunity to make things.

Any youngster will want and enjoy some toys in each one of these areas. He will not want all his toys, even though different, to fall in the same category. He likes and needs this variety.

Trading stamps were outlawed 50 years ago

About half a century since the law forbidding the use of devices for attracting trade into retail stores are again causing controversy.

Apparently there are loop holes in the law large enough to let some trading-stamp schemes creep through and assume legal respectability. It is not contended that these schemes, if they are established by a court decision, differ materially in principle from the schemes that are illegal under the law as it stands. The schemes have been condemned officially by several retailers' associations and no one seems very happy about them except the companies who sell the trading stamps and supply the premiums.

Fifty years ago the public could understand clearly that, in the long run, the cost of trading-stamp schemes would have to appear in the cost of goods they bought. There was little protest when the schemes were outlawed. It is not certain that the modern public can think so clearly. Condemned by governments to believe that they can obtain something for nothing, they are as ready to approve of trading stamps as of welfare-state devices for sharing the wealth. If they believe that governments have sources of wealth other than the taxpayers' pockets, they are quite as likely to believe that retailers also can perform financial miracles.

It is generally true that one cannot get something for nothing, but the truth is subject to the qualification that every now and then somebody does. Some persons are heirs of rich uncles, others make killings in the stock market, or at the races, still others are among the few fortunate winners of sweepstakes prizes. Governments are not openly in favor of these windfalls, but they manage to take their share of the winnings. At both winners and loser, being the race-track to the stock market, based on the amount of money wagered.

The trading-stamp schemes may have been partly inspired by government fiscal philosophy. Obviously many customers of the retailers who hand out trading stamps will not go to the trouble of saving them for an eventual return. Unsaved stamps show a clear profit to the companies, but if the stamps add to the cost of goods, all customers share in paying the costs.

In one respect, the trading stamp schemes are superior to government welfare schemes. Retailers and customers are not forced to use or save trading stamps. The taxpayer who does not want a government to look after his old age or his doctor's bills has no option about paying the cost of government sponsored pensions or health insurance plans. The Guide Advocate, Walford, Ont.

What is your major appliance question

Question—I do not get as high a grade from my cream when it is cooled in the refrigerator as I do when it is cooled in the well. What is wrong with my refrigerator?

Answer—Nothing. Dairy science tells us that air is a very poor medium for cooling milk or cream. Water will remove heat much faster and temperature of cream should be reduced to 50 degrees within one hour of milking. The cooling of cream in a freezer or refrigerator is not recommended for the following reasons:

- (a) Air cooling, being slow, allows considerable bacterial growth before cream in the centre of the container is cooled.
 - (b) If left uncovered in a closed refrigerator, cream may pick up food odors and cause excessive frosting of the refrigerator.
 - (c) If cream is covered while cooling, food or animal odors are not allowed to escape; this gives an off-flavor result.
- These are the reasons that you might get a better grade for cream cooled in a well rather than in a refrigerator. However, the refrigerator is acceptable for storage purposes after fast cooling if the cream is left covered.

SOME DREAM
John Badler, 26, of Toronto, Ont., had dreamed for years of having a family of four, two boys and two girls. He was one-quarter of the way to his goal recently when he left for work—a daughter, six-year-old Louise, at home.

That night his dream became a reality. His wife Irene, gave birth to triplets at East General Hospital, two boys and a girl. The firstborn was a girl, weighing four pounds two ounces. Two boys followed, weighing four pounds two ounces and five pounds seven ounces.
The father has only one worry. He lives in a two-bedroom apartment. 3233

Monster tree at post office

The hydro crew's extension ladder was cranked up against the bristly side of the monster Christmas tree Monday as strings of light were threaded through the branches. The 25-foot tree was brought to town Friday afternoon and now, shining with colored lights—topped by a star. It's the focal point of the shopping district.

Gay lights are also strung across Main and Mill Sts. to mark the holiday season.

Manuel Nellis donated the tree and a Chamber of Commerce committee, headed by Ted Tyler Jr., brought it to town. It was erected with the co-operation of the hydro-department. It is placed in sand and held in place by guy-wire.—The Free Press Acton, Ont., Dec. 13/56.

Thermometers vary

Radiation is important factor in variations

Many Times readers watch thermometers pretty closely at this time of year.

Variations in recordings are interesting, and often the subject of discussion.

It is not always because one thermometer is more accurate than another, however, that variations are noted.

In tests at the Beaverlodge experimental farm in Alberta, winter night readings of accurate thermometers placed only a few feet apart have differed by several degrees.

Dr. A. G. Carter reported that one thermometer was placed in a louvered box, technically known as a "Stevenson screen". The other was placed on the north wall of an insulated building. Both were four feet above ground level.

Although these thermometers were known to vary less than a degree under identical conditions they came within this accuracy only 25 percent of the nights when exposed as described.

On 45 percent of the nights on test they showed a difference of two degrees or more; on 21 percent of the nights, a difference of three degrees or more; and on three percent a difference of more than five degrees. The greatest difference was seven degrees on a calm, clear night.

Dr. Carter said the "phenomenon of radiation" was responsible for these differences. The loss of heat by the mercury of spirit in the bulb of a thermometer to colder objects in the line of sight, could be considerable under certain conditions.

The reverse was also true. The recording "liquid" would take on heat radiated from warmer objects. These objects need not be close at hand. Also, on a clear night, a thermometer openly exposed to the sky would lose heat by radiation and so register much colder than a thermometer in a shelter.

Dr. Carter said that reading from such an openly exposed ther-moremeter might be representative of short vegetation on the ground, but would not correctly indicate the temperature of higher air surrounding animals.

A householder could not be expected to keep his thermometer in a louvered box. Dr. Carter said exposed thermometers would give reasonably accurate performances if certain precautions were taken. He advised that an outside thermometer should never be faced towards the window of a warm room nor towards an expanse of sky. The mercury would take on heat in the latter location.

The instrument was best suspended an inch or two from the north wall of the house which it self faced a background of trees or other buildings. — The Times, Kamack, Sask.—Jan. 17, 1957.

More farmers needed—forums

Is there need for increased efficiency in Canadian agriculture and are there too many farmers? These were the questions discussed by Ontario farm forums on December 3. Seventy-five percent of the forums agreed that farmers could farm more efficiently and if they did, they would not be a greater profit.

Killarney Bay Forum in Victoria said: "To reach an adequate income, greater efficiency is needed to produce more at a lower cost, with less help and less expenditure of labor."

When asked if there were "too many farmers," the forums said there were not, but they did say there were too many "part-time farmers."

Springville forum in Peterborough "supported that idea and stated: "Some farmers are only part-time farmers giving most of their time to city work. This situation would not arise if farmers receive a return for their work which is on a par with that of the city worker."

In final summation, the forums said because of the increase in the Canadian population, there was a need to farm more efficiently and that Canada has room for more, not less, farmers.

It's funny—now
"The lovely colonnaded portico of the Capitol at Tallahassee, shining white in the afternoon sun." These words in an article caught my eye. How well we remember our visit to the same place over a year ago!

My husband had an appointment at the Capitol, so I drove him up to this same portico, let him out, and continued my way around the drive and back to the street. All at once—bump, bump, THUMP.

Jamming on the brakes, I opened the car door. Instead of continuing around the drive, I had taken the wide walk and was going down the STEPS to the street.

Retreat was impossible, so I went forward, taking the remaining six steps as slowly as possible, but getting a tooth-jarring bump on each one.

Fortunately, the slope was easy and the steps were wide, so I got back where I belonged, without damage except to my self-esteem as a careful driver.

Passing motorists were much amused and I can understand why—now!

Viking burial ground excavated in Denmark

On a quiet hillside, just north of the Limfjord, Danish archaeologists are excavating what proved to be one of the largest Viking burial grounds ever found. They also have discovered the "lost city" of Wendia.

The site is Lindholm Hill, a few miles north of Aalborg, with a commanding view over the broad waters of the Limfjord, where once fleets of Viking longboats gathered before making piratical raids on the shores of Britain. This fjord then was an important east-west trade route between Scandinavia and Western Europe affording sheltered traffic through the enclosed waterways of North Jutland between the Baltic and the North Sea.

Lindholm Hill has been known as a possibly important archaeological site for many years. An Aalborg dancing teacher, Miss Augusta Zangenberg, an amateur archaeologist, made some preliminary diggings there as long ago as 1888. But it was not until four years ago that excavations began in earnest by the Danish National Museum and the Aalborg Museum under the leadership of Dr. Thorkild Rasmussen.

Today, about 725 burial sites have been uncovered making Lindholm an even larger Viking cemetery than that at Birka, Sweden. How far afield the Vikings traveled and traded is shown by the discovery of five Kufic silver coins made about 900 A.D. at Tashkent, in Uzbekistan, in what now is the Asiatic part of the Soviet Union.

One of the conundrums of this site when it was first discovered was why Lindholm Hill had been chosen for such an important Viking cemetery when there was apparently no important town in the vicinity. In recent months, however, excavations have disclosed what, by the standards of 1,000 years ago, was an important town. But what has been unearthed so far of this settlement has been found to belong to a later period than the graves.

Dr. Rasmussen believes that it is the town of Wendia, mentioned in the travels of the 11th-century chronicler, Adam of Bremen. Wendia in fact was the "twin" of Aalborg on the southern side of the Limfjord. What is still not CANADIAN COUTURIERS presented their spring fashions recently when their association staged its national premier in Montreal. Among the creations was a tweed suit in grey with tones of blue and mauve; by Montreal's Marie-Françoise de Paria. Collar treatment gave the effect of a shawl collar and cape combined.

STANDARD AD. RETURNS PET TO CHILDREN

A small "Lost Ad.", costing only 50c, returned a pet to the children of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Ferguson last week. Their three-month-old Labrador pup was lost, and was very much missed by everyone in the family. The little advert was inserted in the paper, the Standard was in the hands of the public Friday morning and the puppy was back with the family by noon of that day. And while this is not a fairy tale, everyone was happy once again—Vermilion Standard, Vermilion, Alta.—Jan. 17, 1957.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Stevens and baby daughter and Mrs. B. Lariviere of Drumheller were week-end guests at the home of Mrs. R. Stevens.

A rink from Kinsella went to Loughheed to curl on Sunday and also a number of curlers went to Viking on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wilkinson Sr. of Edgerton visited Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wilkinson and family during the week-end.

Mr. Marvin Horinek of Camrose spent the week-end at his home here and Miss Marlene Brooks of Viking also visited at the Horinek home.

IN CASE YOU'RE WONDERING how there could be more books in your home town community library, you might want to check into the opportunities of The Library Act. Last year, there was an appropriation of $67,000 set aside to administer the Act. A grant system is provided to approved libraries consisting of an establishment grant of $1.00 per capita for regional libraries and annual grants of 35 cents per capita or matching book grants of up to $500 for books and $50 for periodicals.

OIL WELL DRILLING has been called sometimes a risky business from the financing standpoint. It also could be a risky business for the men engaged in production were not regular and extensive safeguards employed by the drilling companies and generally enforced by their own safety men. Despite this supervision there is a feeling of responsibility to Alberta citizens on the part of the Department of Industry and Labor, in seeing that these safety factors are present and operating. As result, there is a regular system of inspection, from derrick top to sludge pit, undertaken by inspectors from the department. The result is a remarkably low incidence of accidents for oil workers in this province.

THIS IS ONLY ONE INDUSTRY that has its safety precautions checked and rechecked by the department. All elevators, all factories where there are employees; in fact, all facets of industry in this province have their respective working conditions regularly under the eye of the Department's inspection branch.

Watch for "Your Alberta" again next week.

Echoes From The Legislative Halls

By Ken Mason

EDMONTON—No one had formally labelled it as such at the time of writing, but Alberta's 1957 budget, will certainly be known as a "share the wealth" budget.

Delivering the budget address last Friday night, Provincial Treasurer E. W. Hinman disclosed that later this year the government plans to pay dividends of around $20 to more than 500,000 adult Albertans.

The budget called for record-shattering expenditures of $288,469,945 during the coming year, and among other things, indicated appropriation of $2,000,000 to set up a credit union to provide capital loans for young farmers and $1,000,000 to launch a rural telephone revolving fund. The dividends will be made available to all Canadian citizens over the age of 21 years who have lived in Alberta for five or more consecutive years.

They will be known officially as Oil and Gas Royalty Dividends. According to the government, they will represent the individual citizen's direct share in the millions of dollars the treasury rakes in every year from oil and gas development.

Mind you, the dividend plan won't come into being until legislation is introduced and approved by the House. But the plan has received the endorsement of the Social Credit caucus and there is little doubt about the Sacred majority carrying such a move which is considered sure-fire bait to keep the party in solid with the voting public.

In his budget address, Mr. Hinman said the House will be asked to set aside $11,000,000 for the dividend fund. This represents one third of oil and gas royalties for the preceding fiscal year.

Under the plan, dividends will increase as royalties increase. The only hitch apparent so far is that the dividends will be subject to federal income tax.

Mr. Hinman says there are many details to work out before the plan can go into operation. No one knows definitely how many Albertans will benefit but it is estimated that more than 500,000 will qualify.

It should be pointed out that the scheme has nothing to do with the Social Credit basic dividend plan which was a major part of the party's campaign for power in the 1950's. Basic dividends were to be based on SC monetary reforms while, in Mr. Hinman's words, the royalty dividend plan "simply recognizes that the citizens are entitled to a direct share in the wealth from natural resources."

The scheme is a major departure from the government's past policy, which has been to use the revenue from natural resources to create new capital assets for future generations, such as highways and public buildings.

Mr. Hinman explained that the government believes the present generation is contributing assets to future generations which more than offset the amount required for the dividends.

The dividend plan probably will provide immunization for one of the major battles during the current session. Many opposition members feel the government should continue its policy of using assets to create new assets. Some also think it would be more help to the individual to reduce taxes, such as the gasoline tax.

There had been broad hints before about the possibility of dividends, but Mr. Hinman made the first positive announcement.

The soft-spoken provincial treasurer, delivering his second budget speech since he was appointed to the post, also called for abolition of amusement taxes on all admissions of 40 cents or less, as a means of helping suffering suburban and small-town theatres.

Other highlights of the biggest budget in Alberta's history: Cabinet ministers' salaries will be boosted by $1,500 to $10,000 a year; members of the legislature from points outside Edmonton will receive seasonal expense allowances of $15 a day in addition to their $3,600 indemnities.

A record highway program is indicated, at an estimated cost of $63,405,285; operational and capital school grants will increase by $4,660,000 to $36,000,000; dept. spending will be $27,333,000, including $800,000 to finance Alberta's share in the federal-provincial hospital plan, if it starts during the fiscal year; major revenue items forecast for the year include $80,000,000 from oil rights sales, $55,000,000 from royalties and $24,000,000 from the gasoline tax.

The budget debate was to be started Monday, and a lively session awaited in prospect.

Other major business in the house this week included a bill amending the act which allows establishment of producer-controlled marketing boards. A vote on establishment of a board is expected to be held in June among some 60,000 egg producers.

The amendment prohibits a marketing board levying a fee on producers for the purpose of establishing a fund to equalize prices.

The House passed (almost unanimously) a Social Credit resolution asking Ottawa to repeal section 12 of the Indian Act, under which 118 Indians were threatened with eviction from the Hobbema reserve south of Edmonton.

Only J. Harper Prowse, Liberal leader, and Hugh John MacDonald, Calgary Liberal, voted against the motion. The rest of the Liberals and members of all other parties agreed the section should be eliminated.

As it the budget debate won't be heated enough, this week in the House promises to produce fireworks over the liquor committee report. Members were to begin debating it on Tuesday, and all indications pointed to a real battle over the question of whether Alberta will relax or not relax the liquor laws.

practical, but that brush sprayed in the early stages of growth could be satisfactorily controlled by this method.

Mr. Patterson said he has undertaken to attend Farm Union meetings and show a series of slides of local interest, and showing local problems. So far I have attended 3 such meetings and these slides have been well received and will be continued during the rest of the winter.

Pest Control
1. The usual policy for coyote control has been used this year with the same results as in 1956. It was continued for one year to try to determine how effective these baits were. A pronouncement by next year would be an indication that the 1956 was needed as a control measure and therefore would be continued.

2. It was also hoped that the other means of control, such as the pellets and the cyanide guns would be used more extensively than they have in the past. To make these materials more readily available to the farmers, local Pest Control officers are appointed by council to serve the Irma, Edgerton and Chavuin areas.

They are Mr. A. C. Archibald at Irma, Mr. Fred Rossier at Edgerton, and our Rat Control Officer, Mr. Prosser at Chavuin.

During 1956, 1485 pellets were issued to farmers in the M.D. I feel that more of these materials could be used which would go a long way to controlling the coyote menace and losses incurred from them.

2. Rat control is still an important part of our program, and your Rat Control Officer, Melvin Prosser, can be consulted on the fine job he has done in this respect.

Bug Vaccination
The Banded vaccination program has progressed very well this winter in spite of what appears to be a growing resistance to this program. To date some 6700 calves have been vaccinated with the job almost completed.

Inspection of several farms was necessary where reports were received that calves were being withheld at vaccination time. A number of additional calves were vaccinated as a result of these inspections.

In closing I would like to thank the members of the Service Board, the Council, and the office staff for the support they have given me, and the interest they have shown in the Service Board program throughout the year.

Respectfully submitted,
Ralph E. Congdon,
Field Supervisor.

The business institution that would succeed has to advertise. The fact that business and industry concerns in the United States are spending up to $700,000,000 a year in national advertising alone, indicates a gigantic outlay yet one that wouldn't be considered if the advertisers concerned were not convinced that newspaper advertising is not rich in dividends for themselves. Newspaper advertising is a tried and proven thing, a demonstrated proposition in successful merchandising.

The report confirms what most people already know. We are fortunate to live in a country which has all the ingredients for progress. Our job is to put them to good use, and the Gordon Commission was created to chart the way.

By and large, the teachers in Brooks and district stand at the top of the profession as represented in Alberta. Their abilities and standards compare favorably. They all contribute to the welfare of their community. Many have made outstanding contributions over the years.

Hello Homemakers:

House Plants

Spring comes early to house plants. As soon as the days begin to lengthen, the plants will begin growth activity. It is a good time to begin cuttings, particularly those of the African Violet.

Plant Clean Up

Dusty leaves prevent an adequate contact with air. The dust may also provide excellent conditions for pests. Wash your plants thoroughly. This can best be done by a fine spray of clean warm water. Any bottle equipped with a spray—such as a window spray jar, is ideal for the purpose. A clothes sprinkler will also serve. You'll be rewarded with a bright green plant, rather than a dusty one.

African Violets

This plant enjoys a warm, moist atmosphere. It is grown from leaf cuttings which root best in the early spring. It should be rooted in water, planted in a 2½ inch pot, then transferred to a 4 inch pot.

The African Violet should not be watered too frequently. It can be watered from the top if care is taken to avoid wetting the leaves. It also can be watered by placing the pot in a pan of water—but the plant should never be left sitting in water.

Slicing Cakes

If you would like to split layers of a cake in two, it is easily done with a piece of fine thread. Use a piece long enough to encircle the cake. Cross the thread and pull both ends. You'll find your cake is evenly sliced. To remove the top layer, insert a double piece of wax paper between the layers and lift the top off.

Candle Holders

Is there a birthday coming up in your family? Use colored life savers for candle holders. They add a colorful note—and can be eaten.
